PERSONALITY

Training in the monastery of Reclusive Abbots of Iremore, Firmoore's father was distant and removed. This was most likely because Firmoore's birth was a stain on the face of the monastery since sex and procreation, especially of wedlock, were forbidden. Thus his existence was kept secret from the abbots and the small towns of peoples that surrounded the monastery.

Although emotionally unavailable, his father still trained him in the ways of the Abbots. He learned quickly in order to impress his father and in hopes of gaining his attention. When the monastery was raided by the political faction in charge of the region and its hidden riches of land and ornate religious items plundered, Firmoore's father was among the dead. The township broken and its population scattered. In flight, Firmoore and his mother landed in a nearby port town known for its fine imported ales. As his mother aged, she fell victim to a respiratory condition and Firmoore was faced with tending to her while generating a decent income.

He took to tending bar at a popular tavern where he acquired a taste for the numerous imported ales that populated its stores. He vowed to gain revenge for his father's death and would train into early hours of the morning in the storehouse of the tavern, siphoning ales as he went. He developed a drunken style that aided significantly in bouncing unruly patrons. When the owner of the tavern discovered that Firmoore had been removing him of 'surplus stock', he fired him.

Returning to his mother that evening, drunk and dismayed, he informed her of their new compromised financial position. "You drunken coward," she condemned, "you've let your father down."
