ROLEPLAYING

Introduction

The din of dining & drinking succumbs to a surprisingly gruff voice of a surly halfling woman. "Ok, ok. Settle down!"

Appearance

Unusually surly and leathery for a halfling. Bald head, no eyebrows. Sleeveless tunic and tight felt jerkins.

Expressions

"Git yer ale and grub in ya and keep down. This is a classy joint"; "None can make this world better"

Mannerisms

Seemingly always tense. Scowls. Eyes everyone suspiciously. Offers goods with seeming reluctance.

Motivations

Not much motivation, really, besides trying to keep her patrons in order and keep a modicum of peace and quiet.

Passions

Peace and Quiet.

BACKSTORY

Tri Leah was born in a small, somewhat remote family, a clan with a long history of craftsmanship. She was the youngest of five children, and her parents were both skilled artisans. Her mother was a weaver, and her father was a blacksmith. Leah was always fascinated by the tools and techniques of her parents, and she spent much of her childhood helping them in their workshop. As she grew older, she discovered a talent for brewing and distilling, and she began to experiment with various herbs and ingredients. Her parents were initially skeptical, but they eventually came to appreciate her skills and the care she put into her work. Leah's life was peaceful and content until the day she was kidnapped by a group of bandits. They took her to a distant land, where she was sold into slavery. She was forced to work in a harsh and unforgiving environment, and she suffered greatly. However, she never lost hope, and she found ways to communicate with the other slaves and to escape their captors. After a long and arduous journey, she managed to return home, where she was reunited with her family. She was a changed person, but she was also stronger and more resilient. She decided to pursue her passion for brewing and distilling, and she opened a small shop in the town square. Her shop became a popular gathering place for the townsfolk, and she found a sense of purpose and belonging. Leah's story is one of resilience and the power of the human spirit. She is a testament to the strength of family and the importance of following one's dreams.
