- {"Staff of Defense simple weapon, non-magical, rare (requires attunement). It is a bludgeoning, versatile (1d8). This staff is hollow and made of glass yet is as strong as oak. It weighs 3 pounds. You must be attuned to the staff to gain its benefits. While holding the staff, you can use your action to cast one of the following spells from the staff if the spell is on your class's spell list="=>"mage armor" (2 charges), shield (2 charges). No component are required. The staff regains 1d6 expended charges each day at dawn. When you expend the staff's last charge, roll a d20. If the roll is 1, the staff shatters and is destroyed. Versatile. This weapon can be used with one or two hands. A damage value in parentheses indicates the damage the weapon can deal with two hands instead of one."}

Combat Tactics

Gren is not to be underestimated. He is a combatant. He will almost exclusively slow down his back from melee and allow his guards to follow him while he casts vicious spells from a safe distance away.

BACKGROUND STORY

With nothing but selfish goals, Wureok the local guild of Magic Arts and, with exceptional cunning and charisma, went way into an internship with the castle at the time. Using his raw magicks and abilities to influence others, he ousted the castle's current ruler, convincing the noble family they served was an imposter - a foreigner looking to undermine their power. Gaining the trust of the royals over decades and generations, Wureok has, at least on the surface, become an exemplary court official. He watches over the castle and surrounding villas with a keen attention to detail; especially when it comes to collecting taxes and scutage. He has organized a growing rebel faction among the peasants and townsfolk, using the pretense of himself applying to turn them against their current benefactor, then twisting the stories told in reports to his benefactor. He therefore has a further reason for his position, for the exploitation of the common-folk, and his family to further insulate themselves from the outside world.
