Ferocious and Short-sighted into Combat

Scythe

Mamoon will be found near graveyards and crypts preparing to infiltrate them to sacrifice the bodies to her God(dess);

Deep, sunken silver eyes. Closely cropped white hair beneath a silver circlet. Lithe for a Duerger and almost sexy, if it weren't for her nearly demonic presence. Wears a necklace of petrified elf fingers.

"The forgotten Ones will rise again, by my hand";
"Shall you look into the abyss of the mouth of the Forgotten?"

Rubs the tips of her fingers together, almost as though preparing magic. Relatively inactive gesticulation explodes into wild swinging of arms and broad facial expressions, almost as though bi-polar or partly possessed.

To bring the pantheon of old Gods back to power
She seeks bodies of the dead to sacrifice to her pantheon.

Necromantic magicks. Any insect that tunnels.
Tunneling. Spelunking.

BACKGROUND STORY

Aspiring to be the Fountainhead of Clax, the High Duergar God of Pestilence and Destruction, Mammooon will stop at nothing to incarnate herself as the ultimate High Priestess; clad in the bones of a thousand dead, each bone tied to the next with the flesh of a thousand more.Mammooon's aspirations come from her abuse at the hands of a former spouse. Married young and corralled into the traditional power positions of a Duergar wife, Mammooon sought power over everything else and would be ruthless in this pursuit. She sought the faith of her village, the surrounding region, eventually the Underdark. Vying for position as Loxxed Priestess, comparable to a magistrate, Mammooon watched as her competitor gained more and more favor. This favor grew as her competitor finally had a child. This Duergar tribe had a particularly hard time reproducing and this was a sign from their God. Not only did she face ongoing abuse from her husband about her barren womb, Mammooon now faced imminent defeat in her pursuit of power.Almost Spartan culture would allow Mammooon to snatch the child from the bed and brought it to the center of Clax, ringing the town bell. Many of the tribe flooded the streets to watch Mammooon sacrifice the child in offering to Clax. The statue reached down, scooped up the body, and consumed it violently. Mammooon was then imbued with an overwhelming sense that she was destined for greater things. She denounced the tribe in an animal growl and fled the Underdark in search of greater sacrifices to Clax. Seeing a
