Background Story

Basil Dumas is the oldest son of Anastasia and the money man of the family. He handles all of the banking and investments of the Dumas Family. He was taught by his father, who ammassed the family fortune as a landlord and moneylender before his untimely death, the ways of the financial world. He is a brilliant financial mind and shrewd businessman, and uses that to the benefit of the family, often investing in businesses and organization in return for favors for the family. When he was a young man, he closed a business deal that evicted an elderly lady and her family. As a result, The lady cursed Basil with the curse of Lycanthropy. Over the years he has managed to gain mastery over the curse, banding it to his will and like all things in his life, to his advantage.
