BACKGROUND STORY

Gleadric was raised in a Firbolg stronghold in the remote forests of on the outskirts of known civilization The pivoting day in his youth, when shamanic calling took control of his dreams and appended them to his woken life, was nearly crippling at t changing him from the day-to-day gentle tenderer to flora into a seemingly secretive tanner and collector of furs."You" changed." One of his closest friends imparted, "but...change life." He patted Gleandric on th back while Cujuloa continued stripp a large Bison of it's hide. Gleadric became two spirits inhabiting one physical body. Cujulo was largely in charge of his daily productive activities - invoking drea in his waking life and providing soft warm dreams to his peoples - while Gleadric remained in control of his interactions with his community However, Cujuloa demanded that the take their firm beliefs in equality an profound spirituality to the civilized communities and that they find new means and ways to bring peoples b to the basic love of for flora and fau They believe that by building room the market for impressive hide and trade - a return to more primitive anarchic ways - while impressing th importance of adhering to dreams of the purported reality of the waking world; that this will bring peoples b to their essential being.

Tr goals, along with their split psyche, make social appearances, well, a challenge in situations relying on a finely detailed social contract. They come across to most as wild or 'cra: but upon closer inspection and interactions, their distilled spiritualit leaves a mark of genuine good.
Poppending on which spirit is ta charge, they refer to themselves in person - either Gleadric or Cujuloa.
